GERMANS SMASH ROUMANIAN ARMY

First Body Routed and Second on Offensive.

(By the International News Service.) Berlin, Oct. 1.—The victory of Gen. von Falkenhayn over the Roumanians around Hermannstadt, in Transylvania, grows with every new dispatch from the front. The Roumanian first army has been shattered and the second army, rushed to its assistance, has been badiy battered, being now solely on the defensive.

Those Roumanians of the first army not killed, wounded or captured are scattered widely in the pathless mountains and tractless wilderness, their supplies cut off.

tractless wilderness, their supplies cut off. Hundreds are expected to be gathered in by the forces thrown out by Von Falkenhayn to scour the country.

The victory has caused the greatest excitement and jubilation seen here in months. The press divides credit between Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Gen. von Falkenhayn for the successful strategy and between the field commander and his subordinate, Gen. Krafft von Delmensingen, for the execution of the plans. It was an army group under Gen. von Delmensingen which captured the famous Red Tower pass, through which large Delmensingen which captured the famous Red Tower pass, through which large bodies of Roumanians had forced a way into Transylvania, and sealing it against them, turned their left wing, closing in from the south, while Von Falkenhayn struck from the west and north.

This wide encircling movement caught the Roumanians in a ring of iron from which, despite their furious attacks, they were unable to cut a way. Trapped, thousands fought to the death, others were taken prisoners, while many are afoot in the mountain wilderness trying fo find their way to their comrades across the rusged Alpine chain.
